Institutional Distinctiveness - Corona Treatment Centre

An Institution's distinctiveness is not only measured by its contribution to the holistic development of the students but also its responsibility to the society at large in times of need. One such alarming disaster was the stage of the pandemic which not only had a huge impact on public, but its impact struck across the board.

When the hospitals were brimming with patients which led to the inadequate health care. The college geared up to support the government by offering hostel rooms to quarantine patients with covid 19 and offered them with essential services.

The pandemic also brought a financial crisis to the farmers specifically from remote villages who were unable to sell their produce owing to absence of transportation facilities. The college swung to their aid by collecting their produce both fruits and vegetables and conveying it to the urban areas where there was adequate demand for their produce. The small hold farmers were able to immensely benefit from this. This mutually facilitated the farmers and the public who were struggling to locate the essential commodities. The college acted as a mediator between the farmers and the public supporting them in times of need.
